

To Whom It May Concern,

As Director of Flying Deer Nature Center, an environmental education center in New Lebanon New York, I am thrilled to hear about the Housatonic River Floodplain Forest Restoration Project. We at Flying Deer are very aware of the ecological imbalance prevalent in local Taconic and Berkshire natural landscapes caused by human ignorance and impact, and feel that this waterways conservation, restoration & community awareness project would be a crucial improving step in restoring the health of the earth.

We expect projects such as the Housatonic River Floodplain Forest Restoration Project to quickly become commonplace and widespread as a new way of thinking about and relating to the land spreads around the world. Please support this invaluable project--our future generations need it!

Sincerely,

Devin Franklin, Director
Flying Deer Nature Center
